

Exploring Narrative Mapping as a Lens into the Relationship of Team Member Attachment Styles with Team Psychological Safety

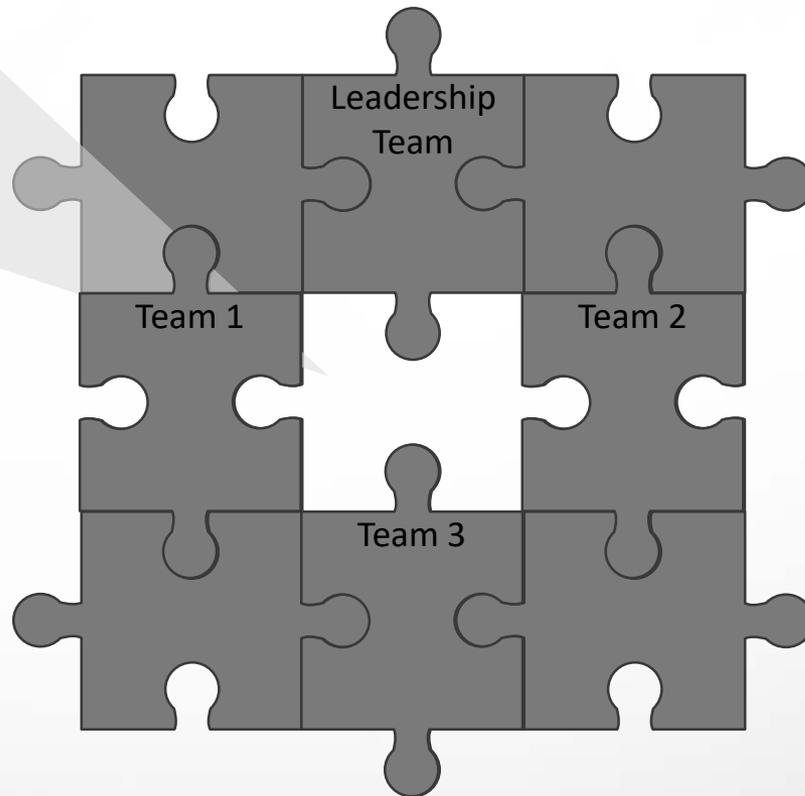

Jonathan Silk- Pepperdine University
Michele Norton-Texas A&M University

Storytelling

Think back through your childhood and early career experiences...

Tell about an experience where you caught a glimpse of what an effective leader might be.

Setting

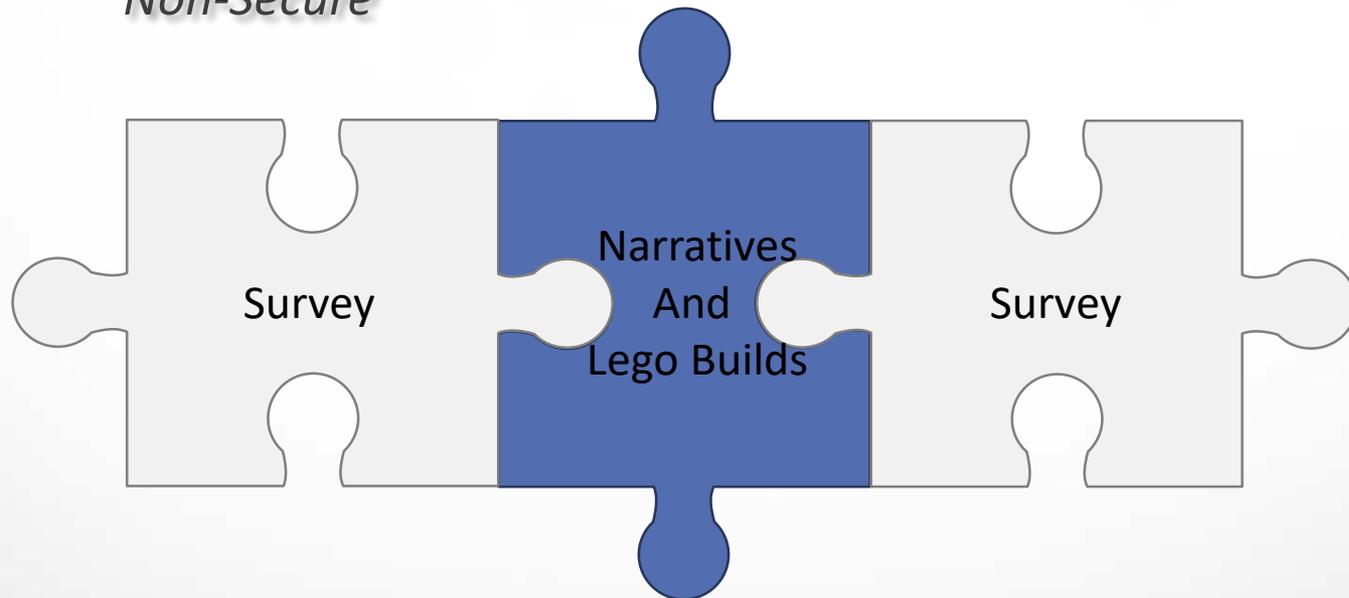

Puzzle – Leader-Member Exchanges impacting space between Attachment and Psychological Safety

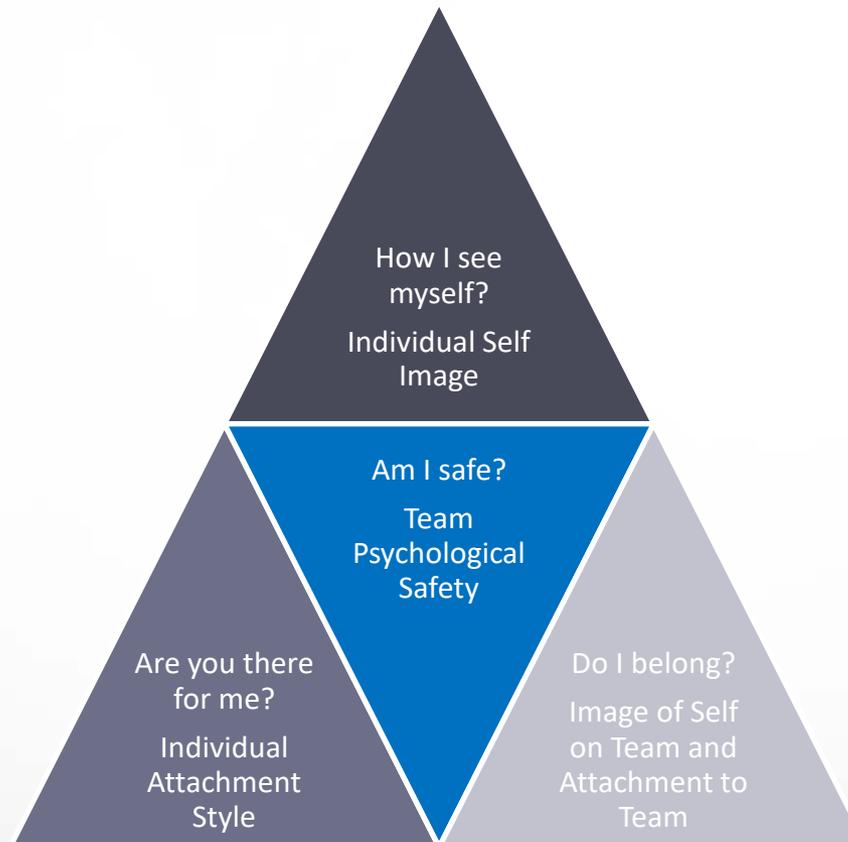

Individual Attachments- Secure or Non-Secure

Leader-Member Exchanges

Team Psychological Safety

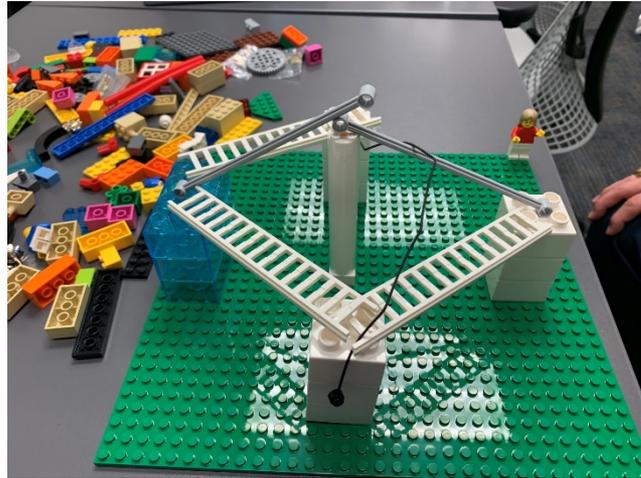

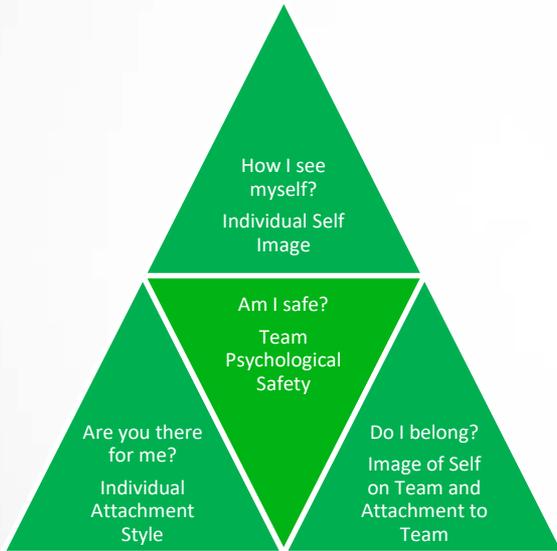

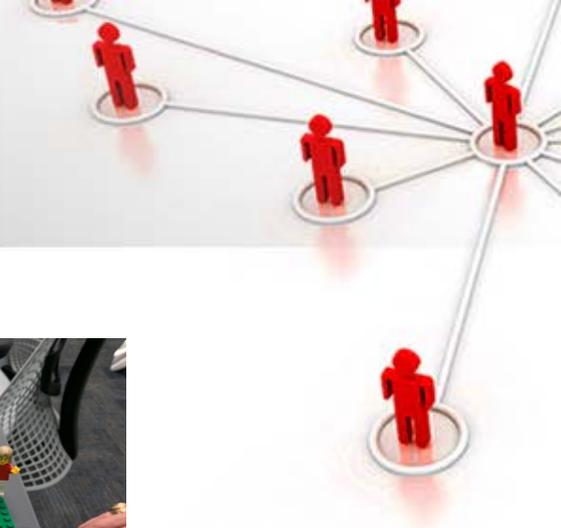

Variables- Attachment and Psych Safety

Narratives

Jason- Leader

People First Behaviors

Southwest

Vulnerability and Transparency

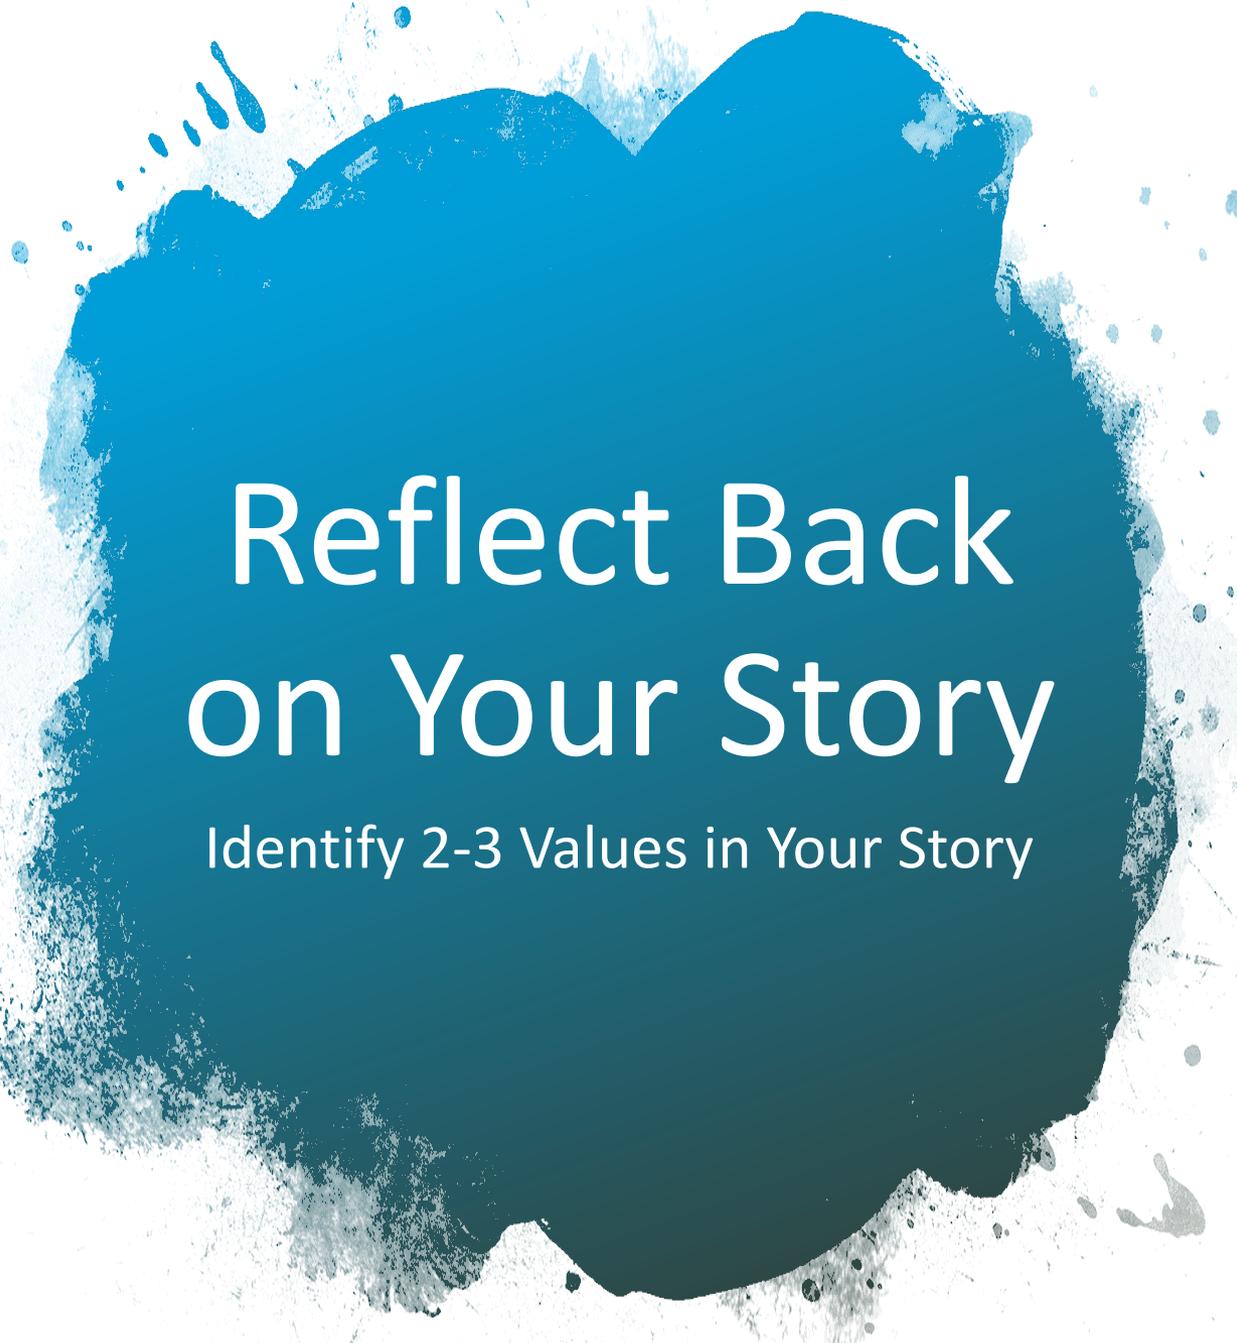

Report Card

Developing and Growth

Scholarships for Growth

Clear Expectations

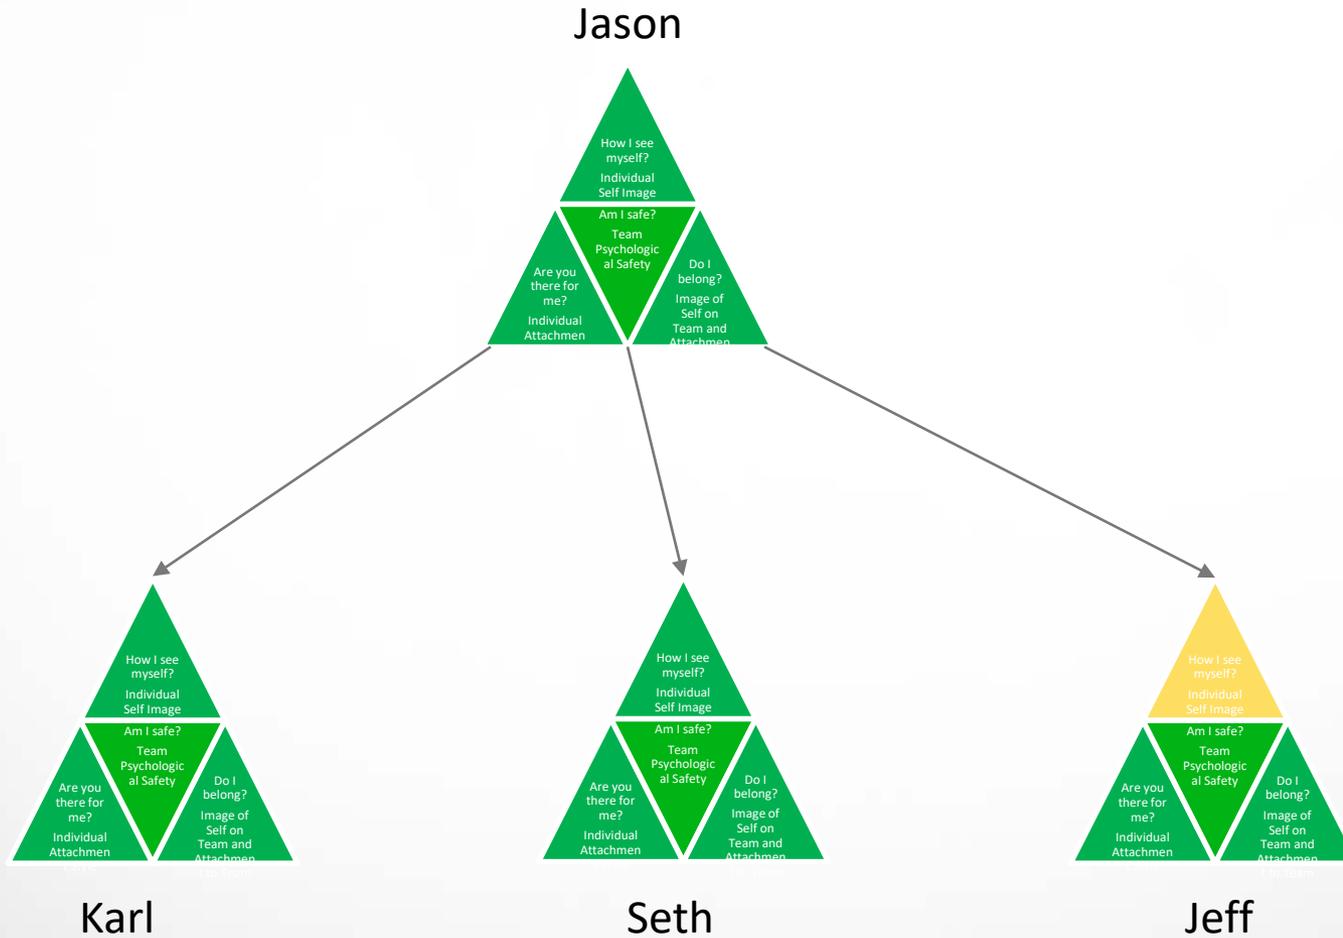

Bridge

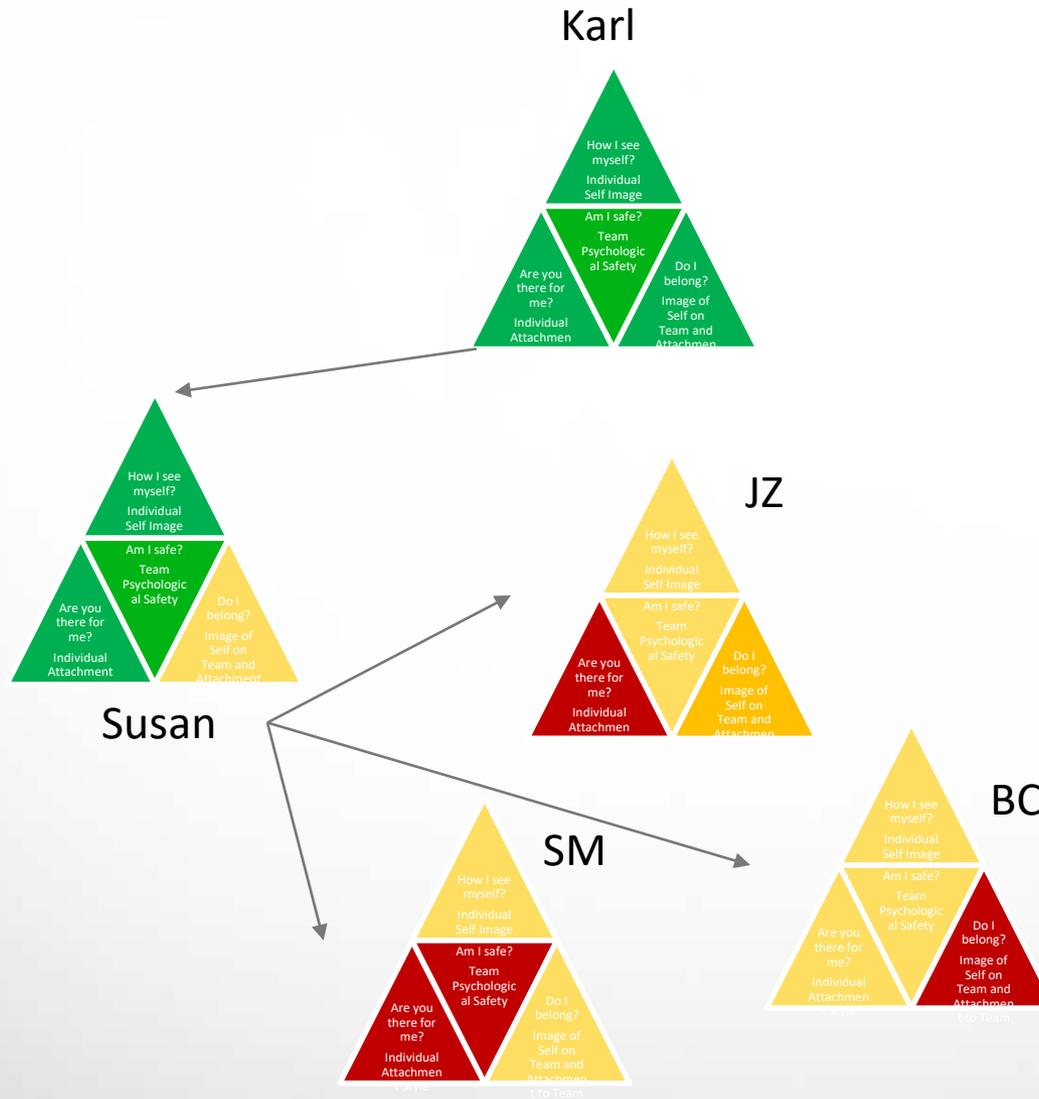

Reflect Back on Your Story

Identify 2-3 Values in Your Story

Leadership Team

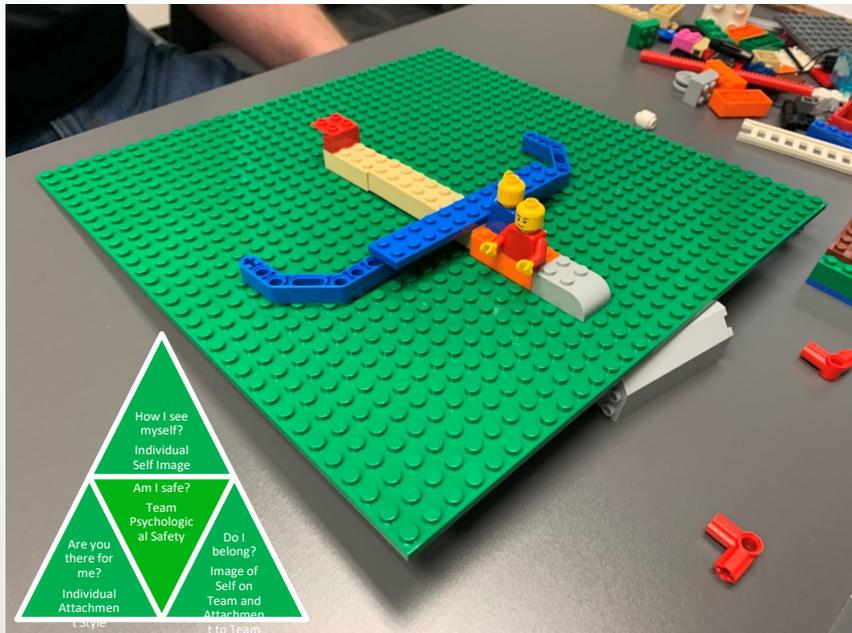

Karl's Team

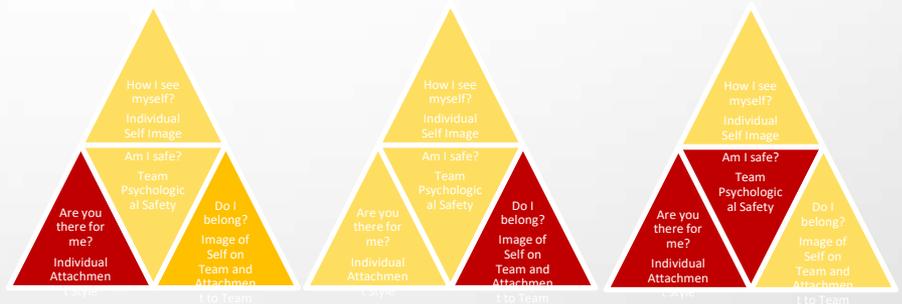

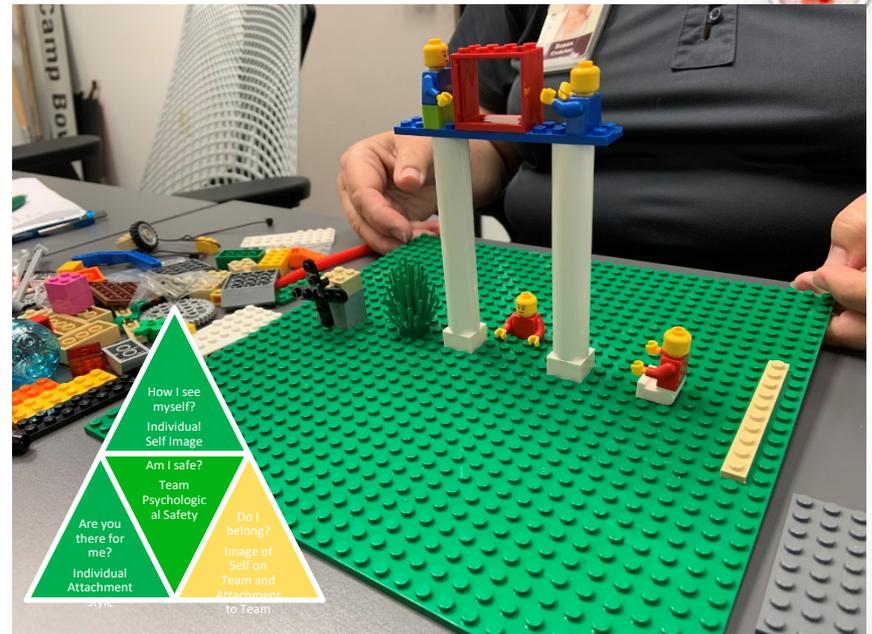

Conflicting Narratives

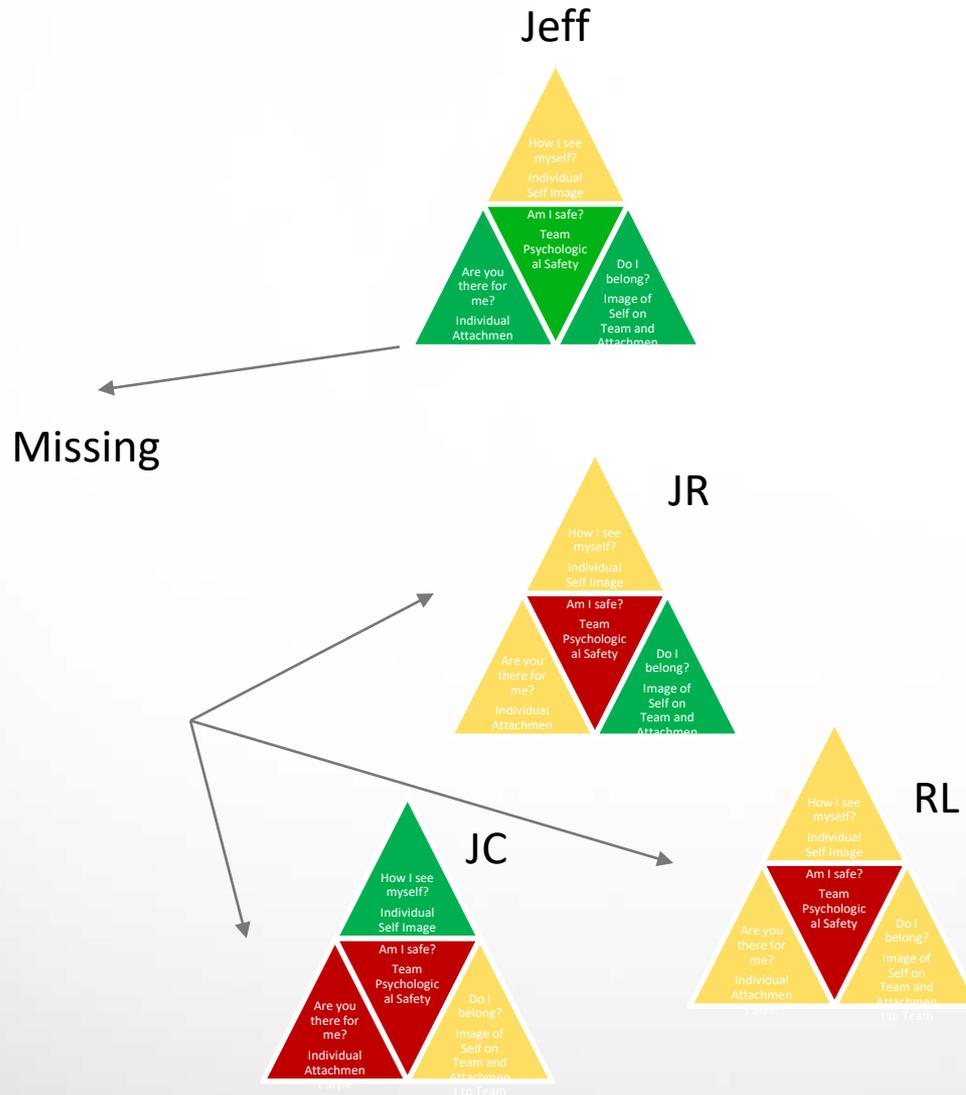

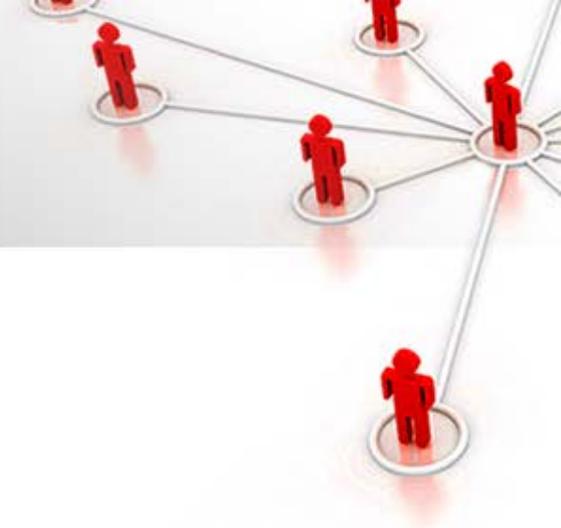

Karl

Susan

Jeff's Team

Counter Narratives

Jeff

JC

RL

Take-Aways and Future Research

1

Looking at how beliefs and values travel across networks

2

How narratives help carry those beliefs and values across networks

3

Anyone that was yellow or red for Are you there for me ? (attachment) was never green for Psych Safety

4

Middle Manager: despite greens related to team above, his yellow for self-image, showed up in member team surveys as yellow and red attachment and psych safety

5

Words in narratives described the beliefs and values of organization, but actions showed up in Lego build reflections conflicted with those beliefs and values as described in her stories and showed up in team member surveys

If Leadership Behaviors aligned with your declared beliefs and values, how would the members of your team answer the 4 ?

